Cosmos

Red Diamond stared impassively down at the gem on the table in front of her. It's entire right arm was it's gem, with it stretching across it's chest and slowly tapering off to form it's physical body. It was an undefined gem, formed in a lab and force-ably not allowed to define itself. See, during their creation, gems start as a massive power source, and slowly they refine to form a new gem. In this process, they sacrifice power however. So, Red Diamond ordered her labs to attempt a brilliant idea for an experiment. This was the result. The gem itself was black, with purple and blue swirling constantly around it. In a dark room, it lit up the place with purple and blue lights, swirling. The physical body was gray, with dark purple hair and brilliant blue eyes. It hadn't had enough time for form a conscious, and it was currently in a primordial state. It was incredibly powerful, even more so than the fusions of the Diamonds. They did not understand it's power yet, but they knew. The experiment, was a complete success.

It was due to 'awaken' it's personality any time now. And Red Diamond was excited. She stared down at the body, wondering if it would be a female or male gem. Slowly, the body moved, the gem shifting around before sitting up and staring at her. "HAHAHAHA! You wanna know something!? The Universe is infinite! It's expanding at a rate that is exponentially getting faster! Dark matter forms the universe, and Dark Energy powers the Universe's creation! I understand it! It's rather simply really, but it's incredibly powerful! HAHAHA!" The gem laughed, bouncing around the room, floating, flipping, purple and blue mists floating around it when it flew around the room.

"What are you saying, New-Formed?" Red Diamond question. New-Formed was what gems called newly formed gems. It just made sense. "I'm talking about the universe! And the untapped power it holds! Where do you think gems get their power? Their ability to create weapons!? It's from Dark Matter and Dark Energy! If it's tapped into, you can do literally _anything!_" The young gem shouted excited, confusing Red Diamond.

"Please explain, and stop flying around the room. It's annoying." Red Diamond dead-panned, stopping the excited and twitchy gem. The gray gem flew down and sat down on the table, and Red Diamond noticed how it's personality fit it's body. It was currently in the form of a small child, easily excitable and loud. "I'll say it slowly this time okay? Dark Matter, you with me? Okay. Dark Matter is what forms everything in the universe. It is molded into the different materials and elements. What controls and powers this molding is Dark Energy, an incredibly powerful energy source that is infinite. Both of these things are infinite, and the reserves of both these natural occurrences increases exponentially, meaning it gets bigger, faster. This also explains why the Universe expands at a constantly faster rate. Gems have a small amount of each, which explains why gems have no need to sleep, and have energy to do anything. They use this to form their weapons, using Dark Matter and molding it with Dark Energy. Understand?" The gem asked, twitching with excitement still.

Red Diamond was stumped. How did a new gem know so much? Even the archives did not have this information. "How do you know this?" Questioned Red Diamond. "Hehe," The gem giggled, "because of my gem! I don't have a weapon, because I have full control over both Dark Matter and Dark Energy!" The gem laughed happily, forming many kinds of things in the palm of it's hand. Red Diamond stared, shocked as multiple weapons, materials, gems, etc formed and changed in the gem's palm. "Hehe, I need clothing. I look to bland!" The gem shouted, before black pants formed along with blue shoes. "Why no shirt?" Red Diamond questioned. "Hehe, because my gem looks cool!" The gem shouted, before it could no longer hold in the excitement. It started flying around the room, giggling as it made different animals fly around with it using the Universe's building blocks.

Red Diamond just stared in massive interest. This New-Formed was definitely the most brilliant, powerful, and... energetic gem to ever exist...

Later.

The New-Formed floated around in the Diamond Council room. The four diamonds, Red, Blue, Yellow, and Pink sat surrounding it. It giggled as it spun in the center of the Diamond's seats, staring at each one as it passed. "Red Diamond, why have you brought this... thing here today?" Blue Diamond questioned, staring at the odd gem. Red Diamond stepped in the center along with the New-Formed, and gripped it's shoulder. She forced it down to look at the other Diamonds with her. "This is the result of the experiment I had my labs attempt, the one I had approved 2 cycles ago. It has just recently awoken from it's primordial state, and it is incredibly powerful as we knew before. However, it is much more than we believed. It brings with it knowledge that could massively help the Homeworld and it's gems." Red Diamond stated confidently, before the New-Formed looked around.

"Hello!" It giggled, waving with 30 hands that just appeared out of it's back at the Diamonds. It started to float again, but Red Diamond's grip was powerful. "Hmm," Yellow Diamond moved forward and squinted her eyes, "explain. We will judge and decide on a course of action later." Yellow Diamond stated, before the meeting commenced.

As the New-Form's abilities were explained, and the Diamonds began to understand, their eyes widening as the meeting went on. They began to understand why Red Diamond had stated the meeting was important. Every new gem needed a meeting to determine it's purpose, but this was on a whole new level. The New-Formed gem was giggling the whole time, flying around and creating random things to play with.

"New-Formed, step forward." The gem complied, smiling at the Diamonds. Said figures of political power actually smiled as well, it was rare to see such a happy, energetic gem. "What gender do you identify as?" Pink Diamond questioned, her voice kind and soft. "Hehe, male!" The now identified boy happily shouted, even though he tried to keep his voice down. It was hard for him to calm down, Dark Energy was constantly coursing through his body. He acted as a conduit for the Universe in a sense. "I see, well, seeing as you have no identifiable type of gem, we will assign you a name." Pink Diamond explained to the young boy, before the four Diamonds grouped together and discussed a possible name.

Eventually, after what felt like forever for the overactive gem, the Four Diamonds turned around and talked in unison. "From this day forward, you will be known as Cosmos, to symbolize your connection to the Universe itself. Dismissed!" The Four Diamonds spoke as one, deeming the new gem as Cosmos. Cosmos smiled happily, disassembling in front of the four Diamonds and reassembling in the middle of the gem society, scaring a couple of the gems around him as he simply appeared. Everyone continued on as Cosmos giggled as he walked down, not sure exactly what he was supposed to do, so he simply did what he normally did, have fun.

Gem Wars.

Cosmos giggled madly as he stared at the current battlefield of the War between the Crystal Gems and HomeWorld. It had been 346 years since his creation, and he had grew into the most powerful and influential gem to have ever graced HomeWorld. He was standing in his spaceship, staring through a view glass from his position just under the clouds of a planet known as Earth. The Revolution was led by Pink Diamond, who began calling herself Rose Quartz. She had a side general that was always with her, a Pearl that was adept in Sword-Play. Currently, Cosmos was planning to drop in and win the battle. He saw Rose eying his ship in worry. Everyone knew his ship by it's look, hell by it's shadow.

It was a huge, spiked ship that was all black with blue viewing glass. Most ships were either cubed or spherical, but Cosmos made his own ship with his ability to manipulate Dark Matter. No one else, for the exception of the Diamonds, were allowed on his ship. He had complete control over the Universe, so he had no need for a operating crew. He grinned maniacally, melting through the floor and falling down to the battlefield. A whistle noise echoed around the battlefield as Cosmos dropped through the air, before a large boom rang through everyone's ears.

All battling stopped as dust flew everywhere, and as it cleared, a glowing purple and blue arm shot through the dust, attempting to grab Rose Quartz. In an instant, a sword swung and connecting with the gem arm. A clang boomed around the battlefield, clearing the dust and allowing everyone to see a shirt-less Cosmos gripping a small Pearl's sword. Cosmos had grew over his three century long life. He towered over Pearl, slightly taller than Rose. He had a muscular figure, and his gem arm was incredibly imposing. He still had dark purple hair, and his eyes glowed like his gem arm. He still only wore pants and shoes, preferring to show off how his arm stretching into his chest, splintering in the center of his chest. He grinned excitedly at the now scared Pearl. Every gem had heard about Cosmos, the insane, excited, powerful gem that had bested all four Diamonds in a fight, with them against him. And he barely moved.

"Hehe, a little Pearl to protect you, Pink Diamond? I had always believed you to be the stronger, smarter Diamond, and yet, you have a Pearl protect you. Hahaha, as naive as ever!" Shouted Cosmos, shattering Pearl's sword and throwing the small gem aside. No one dared move during this encounter, both sides knowing that should Cosmos decide, any one of them could die at any moment. Purple and blue mist started to swirl around Cosmos as he approached a ready Rose, her shield and sword at the ready. "Cosmos, you don't have to do this! You used to be such a happy gem! The only one who could be happy in any situation! You were always so energetic, you still are!" Shouted Rose, causing Cosmos' grin to increase tenfold.

"I still am! I'm all of those things you mentioned! I am a conduit for the Universe! Do you know how it feels to understand _everything_!? Of course you don't! I am the only one who can understand! I realize that nothing as a reason! Nothing has a point! So, I just try to have fun with it! I don't care what happens! If I die, I'll just recreate myself! So tell me, _Rose, _why shouldn't I do this!?" Yelled Cosmos as he approached the large gem, the mist slowly forming a large scythe. It was Cosmos' favorite weapon to create, even though he could create any. The Scythe just clicked with him.

Rose lowered her shield and sword, even as a scythe found itself on the back of her neck, almost piercing her physical form. She looked up into the mad eyes of Cosmos. "Because, you don't need a reason. You can _create _one, from the bonds you form with the others around you. Your reason can be anything Cosmos! Just look into your heart! Find a reason to stop this madness! Innocent lives don't have to be wasted on the battlefield!" Rose's voice raised in what seemed desperation. Cosmos had always been weak to words, preferring to use violence or logic when it came to conflicts. He stared, stumped as Rose's words. "W-What?" Cosmos muttered, backing up as the Scythe disappeared from his hand, mist swirling around him before disappearing. Then, a spear suddenly pierced Cosmos in his chest, just missing his gem as intended by the gem that was behind him.

"Cosmos!" Yelled Rose as she dove and caught his body. She had always treated Cosmos like her son, and he treated her as his mother. They had a tight bond, but the war had interfered. She looked at Pearl in disappointment. "Pearl, couldn't you see he had stopped showing aggression! You know I told you violence was always to be used as a last resort!" Rose cried, watching as Cosmos' physical form gave way and a large chunk of black, purple, and blue gem that resembled an arm dropped to the ground. Rose bubbled it, and tele-ported it to their home before the Crystal Gem forces were suddenly assaulted in anger by Cosmos' forces. The battle resumed, an extraordinary gem slowly being forgotten due to the long fight, the war even further damaging his memory.

Present

Steven was currently bubbled in the core of the temple, an annoyed expression on his face as he looked around. Attempting to pop the bubble, he succeeded but landed on another, large bubble. He stared down at the contained gem, and was shocked to see a glowing gem that resembled an arm. His eyebrows furrowed, he didn't remember 'poofing' this gem. 'Hrmming', Steven attempting to get off of the bubble, not expecting it to pop. He screamed as he fell from th high height of the room, but was surprised when he was caught by a cold arm. He looked up, and realized that the gem arm had caught him. Slowly, purple and blue mist swirled around the arm and slowly formed a large, imposing form that resembled a massive body builder. Dark purple hair formed, shadowing eyes that glowed slightly behind the hair.

"Hehe, thanks for releasing me..._Steven._"
